

A desk for your car

You can eat in your car, make phone calls in your car and now, thanks to Express Desk, you also can type in your car.

The Express Desk isn't really a desk per se. It's a vinyl-coated wire contraption that turns your car's steering wheel into a temporary desk for your laptop. The $39.95 device from Mobile Office Enterprise comes with curved handlebars that fit over the top of the steering wheel and Velcro straps that hold the laptop in place. The angle and height of the desk can be changed by adjusting the steering wheel up or down.

The makers of the device warn, however, that it's not "NOT TO BE USED WHEN DRIVING."

The Express Desk works best when your car is safely parked in a driveway.
